MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING
CONCERNING THE
TRIANGLE RESEARCH LIBRARIES NETWORK (TRLN)

A cooperative endeavor of Duke University, North Carolina Central University, North Carolina State University, and The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

HISTORICAL NOTE

Cooperation among the academic research libraries of the Research Triangle dates to 1933 when the presidents of the University of North Carolina and Duke University created the Committee on Intellectual Cooperation. Library cooperation became the strongest and most enduring component of the 1935 Program of cooperation of the Universities. This cooperation later expanded to include the libraries of North Carolina State University and has now grown to incorporate North Carolina Central University. For most of its history, the cooperative programs consisted of coordinated collection development and resource sharing.

Library cooperation was revitalized in 1977 when the Triangle Universities Library Cooperation Committee (TULCC) was formed to develop a technical and organizational support system for resource sharing. The name Triangle Research Libraries Network was adopted in 1980. The first memorandum of understanding was signed in 1984 and revised in 1987. They emphasized the systems development mission of TRLN, narrowly defining its purpose as "to develop and maintain a network of online catalogs and other automated library systems."

This new Memorandum of Understanding incorporates North Carolina Central University into TRLN for the first time. It also broadens the purpose statement to incorporate the traditional programs of cooperative collection development, resource sharing, and technical innovation with new concepts of collaboration for leveraging institutional resources to improve access to information for our users in a technologically advanced environment.
